

HERE'S!!* WAY TO WATCH Kenshiro vs SandovalLIVE STREAMSBoxing ON TV CHANNEL

Kenshiro Teraji and Ricardo Sandoval are set to clash in a highly anticipated showdown for the WBC and WBA Flyweight World Championship on Wednesday, July 30, 2025. The event takes place at Yokohama Buntai in Yokohama, Japan, with the main card beginning at 5:45 a.m. ET (2:45 a.m. PT), and the main event ringwalks expected around 7:30 a.m. ET (4:30 a.m. PT).

Last Update: July 30, 2025

Japan's own Kenshiro Teraji enters the ring with the crowd behind him, defending his unified titles with the precision and composure that have defined his reign in the flyweight division. Across the ring, Ricardo Sandoval of the United States presents a formidable challenge, known for his aggression, power, and relentless work rate. The styles of both fighters promise a technical yet explosive bout that fans around the world won't want to miss.

The fight will be broadcast live on DAZN globally, with ESPN carrying the event in selected regions including Mexico and the United States, and U-Next streaming the bout in Japan. With two world titles on the line and global eyes watching, this championship match is set to deliver a memorable moment in boxing history from Yokohama.